

1984 MUSTANG

playing our cards right

Bishop McNamara High School 6800 Marlboro Pike Forestville, Maryland (301) 735-8401 Mustang '84 Volume XVII

The 1983-84 school year began as a sure bet that McNamara would successfully maintain its position of being the winning school that it is and always has been. By providing a Christian atmosphere, combined with many challenging experiences, McNamara students traditionally have been stimulated academically, spiritually, socially and athletically.

The year brought about many exciting experiences which helped "ante up the pot" of our successes. We shared in several, thought-provoking, student assemblies that raised our consciousness to many contemporary issues. We celebrated with our "It's Academic" Team as they won more victories than any other team in Mac's history. We were proud of the championship seasons of our J.V., Freshman Football Teams and Wrestling Team. But our success was measured not only by our victories. During those times when "the cards were not dealt in our favor," that special McNamara unity and support raised our spirits and our hopes.

We all share in that victory of becoming special winners. Thus, in keeping with that fine tradition, we can honestly say that in the 1983-84 school year, we really were "Playing Our Cards Right!"

Dedication

ur choice for this year's yearbook dedication has experienced both the growth and evolution of Bishop McNamara High School. He is a man, who, for the past fifteen years, has greatly influenced generations of McNamara students through his capable teaching skills, his bright personality, and most of all, through his sincere concern and general affection for all of his students. Believing that the lights of education are not just found in the classroom, he has broadened the academic horizons of our students through their participation in the Model United Nations Program, the Court and State Internships, and most recently, through the organization of several, enlightening and challenging, school assemblies. It is because of his committed dedication and rare loyalty to both a school and community, that we, the Class of 1984, proudly dedicate with both gratitude and affection, the 1983-84 McNamara Yearbook to Mr. Frank J. Broschart. We wish him both God's blessings and peace in the many years to come.

Tt has always been the philosophy at Bishop McNamara that the develop-I ment of the body is as equally important as the development of the mind. Athletics gives us the perfect opportunity to experience competition and to develop a greater appreciation of self-discipline. Hopefully, this in turn, can encourage us in all areas of our life in the future. Not only that, but who can deny the simple fact that it's just plain fun?

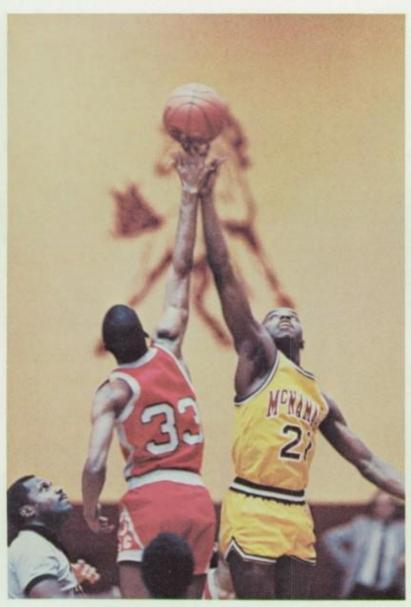

Under the capable direction of Coach Frank Neitzey, McNamara's Athletic Department is one of which we are proud. Whether we participate in the school's team sports themselves, work out in the weightroom after school, or simply play racquetball on Wednesday afternoons, we are provided with the chance of experiencing the joys of winning, and, realistically, at other unfortunate times, experiencing the disappointments of losing. But, isn't that part of playing the game? Most importantly though, we learn to work together for a common purpose and goal. After all, community building is the priority at McNamara both on and off the field, and that's one card you cannot pass!

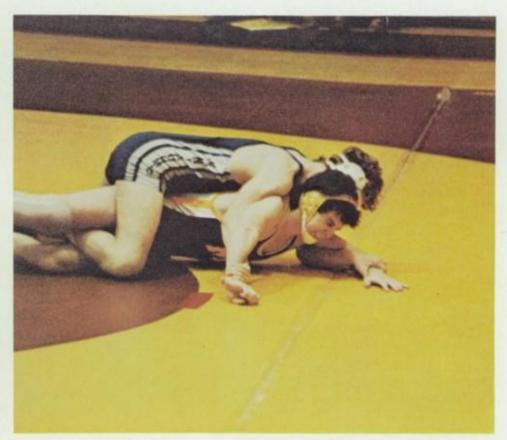

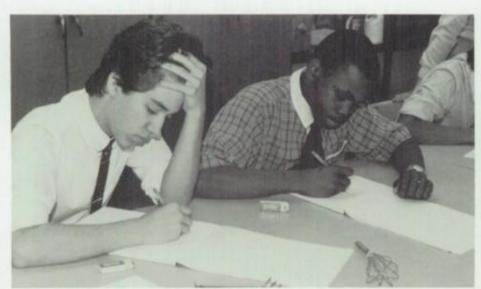

Reaching for the stars! There's got to be an easier way to success! (T. Connolly) ady Luck certainly smiled upon the Mustangs at the annual Homecoming Game. Due to the tough opponent, St. John's, both the players and crowd were noticeably excited and tense. But, McNamara's "trump card" remained its strong defense. Also, with Steve Piazza's many completions and Marco Clark's winning touchdown passes, the Mustangs "aced" a solid victory of 15-0.

The highlight, though, was the traditional Homecoming Parade, which included the Homecoming Queen, her court, and several floats. The activities carried on when we celebrated our victory at the Homecoming Dance. All agreed that it was a perfect way to crown a royal event!

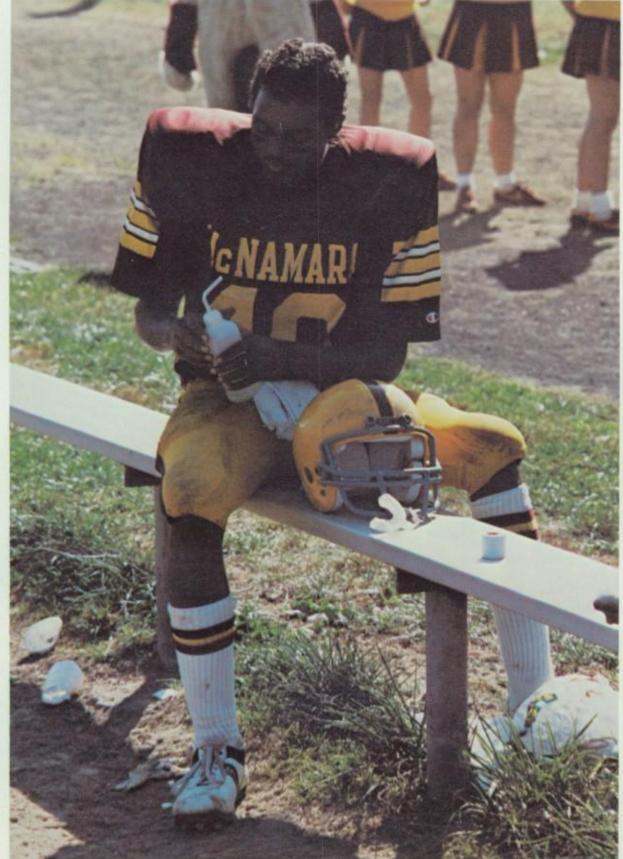

"These stains need to be SHOUTED OUT." Coach Neitzey sends in reinforcements.

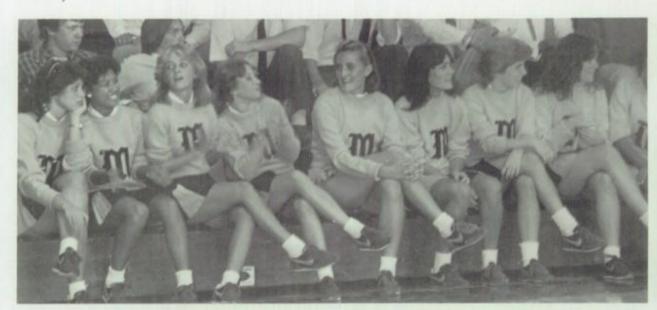

Better luck next time, Darryl! "I always knew I'd make it to the top!"

Spirit Day

Every day is Spirit Day at McNamara! But, once a year in preparation for the annual Homecoming Game, the Sudent Council sets aside one day where students celebrate the McNamara spirit in a very unique way. For a time, "the colors of the suits" were changed, as students said "good-bye" to their usual jackets and ties and said "hello" to costumes ranging from cartoon characters, decades from the past and future, clashing colors and formal, evening wear. With competition cheers echoing in the gym, the day saw its climax with a pep rally that included students challenging teachers to a "football throw" and awarding prizes for best costumes. The event certainly proved to be a perfect prelude to the following day's victory!

Meeting of the Minds his year the "It's Academic" team enjoyed greater success than any other "It's Academic" team in McNamara history. The team, led by captain Jim Ferguson with Ken Elkin and Brian Keizer, began their winning ways by scoring an impressive first round victory over opponents Eastern and Coolidge. The score was Mac, 550; Eastern, 250; and Coolidge, 150.

Those winning ways continued as the team streamrolled second round opponents Parkview and Connelly School of the Holy Child. The score was Mac, 410; Parkview, 230; and Connelly, 180.

Yet the team finally succumbed to the competition in a disappointing loss in the semi-finals at the hands of Georgetown Day and Northwood. However, by reaching the semi-finals the team established itself as one of the top nine teams in a field of 81.

Under the guidance of Mr. Goyette, the team members along with the senior alternates and sophomore and junior club members practiced twice a week in preparation for the popular Sunday morning quiz show.

Minority Pride

Pride and celebration were two dominant themes emphasized this year by McNamara's Black Awareness Committee. In support of these themes and in conjunction with National Black History Month, several gospel choirs from the local D.C. area gathered in our school gym, under the sponsorship of the BAC, to prayerfully sing several, moving spirituals and hymns. In addition to this "Annual Gospel Choir Festival," the BAC further fostered its black identity by sponsoring a dance, where a record crowd grooved to the sounds of the cranked-up hits of the ever popular "Ayre Rayde." As you can see, a little soul never hurts the soul.

This year, besides conducting several auctions and engaging in individual trading, the club also attended some local conventions on the art of collecting.

his past year many selected upperclassmen were given the opportunity to serve as interns for both the State of Maryland and the United States Legislatures. Although the Congressional Internships were just introduced this year, the State Internship Program has been at McNamara for the past several years.

By viewing the two legislatures in action, our student interns gained an understanding and appreciation for the time and effort exercised by our elected officials for each debated issue. While gaining first hand experience of the legislature in action, the interns were given special assigned tasks, such as running errands and completing miscellaneous office work. We extend our personal gratitude to Mr. Frank Broschart, coordinator of the Program, State Senator Mike Donovan, Rep. Dennis Donaldson and Congressman Stenny Hoyer for their utmost cooperation in making these enriching programs a viable option for McNamara Students.

To Think with Christ

Campus Ministry involves the entire faith community at McNamara in service to God and neighbor. The Campus Ministers serve this faith community by encouraging and organizing, with the help of all interested, the celebration of the sacraments, retreat experiences, and Christian service.

The Campus Ministry team includes: Mr. Dudley, the coordinator; Father Larry Jerge, and, a welcome addition this year, Mrs. Marianne Gallagher.

All students and faculty are encouraged to help with the programs and activities either through service projects in their religious education courses or as a co-curricular activity.

It is precisely the student and faculty involvement which has helped to make this year's program different. Some highlights of this involvement include: the freshmen and new student orientation day in August; the OXFAM-America fast; the Christmas food drive chaired by Jim Stakem; the special Advent and Holy Week assemblies; an ecumenical Clown's for Christ workshop at Oxon Hill Methodist Church; student workers on McKenna's Wagon; and the many special guest speakers and celebrants.

Who knows what the future holds? Students, faculty, and parents are working together with pastors to form an advisory board so that more service projects and programs can be developed. We hope to see more students leading assemblies, helping to give retreats, and taking leadership roles in the Christian community at McNamara.

welcomed addition this year to the variety of clubs here at McNamara is the newly formed "Racquetball Club". Originally beginning with a small group of students and teachers, the club has now evolved to include several members of the school community. Allowing for the diversity of ability, both newcomers to the sport and those more advanced players are encouraged to exercise their skill on the court every Wednesday afternoon. The main objective of the club though is to simply have fun, while at the same time, allowing for both students and teachers to relate beyond the classroom setting. In fact, judging by the amount of laughter and enthusiasm shown, no one would argue that the only "racquet" on the court was not just the one in the hands of the players.

The Incredible Hulks

By looking at the size of some of the McNamara students, one can see that the money invested in the new weightroom and equipment was well spent. With access to equipment that can equal the quality of any major university, Mac students gather three times a week after school to discipline both body and mind in a comfortable setting. Under the supervision of Mr. Andy Turner, Mr. Brian Nogay and Mr. Mike Smith, any student is welcomed to build up his sagging biceps or to trim down his flabby waistline.

Parliamentary Procedure

Student Council Officers: Jeff Tornell, Vice-Pres., Matt Turner, Pres., Mr. Goyette, Mod., Ricardo Crocker, Sec.-Tres.

The purpose of a student council is to serve as both a liason between the students and administration, and to implement student activities that would promote school spirit and comraderie on all community levels. Abiding by the Student Council Constitution, Moderator Mr. Matthew Goyette and President Matt Turner tried to meet these objectives.

In the process, the school was treated to several creative pep rallies, produced by Tim Tharp and Marco Clark. Instrumental in implementing the McKenna's Wagon Program, the Christian Action Committee, served by Mark Carden and Greg Boehmer, heightened our awareness to the needs of the poor. Thanks to Tim Connelly and the Athletic Committee, on Saturdays students from all classes participated in the successful Intramural Program. With the dedication of President Tom Buckley and his officers, the senior class raised one of the highest amounts ever for the McNamara Prom. Similarily, the junior class sponsored several successful ski trips which benefited their treasury and raised their hopes for a productive 1984-85 year. With a good introduction to student government, the sophomore and freshman officers look to the coming years with equal enthusiasm.

Freshman Officers: J. Johnson, J. Sheehy, K. Sinai, D. Jones, D. Palmer, D. Collins, Miss Clark, moderator, R. Taylor.

Face the Nations

Once again this year, McNamara's juniors and seniors participated in the National High School Model United Nations Program. It was the tenth, annual Model U.N., and forty-two students, along with Mr. Frank Broschart and Mr. Charles McIntosh, took part in this distinguished program.

Students from all over the United States (approximately 250 high schools) traveled to New York City to simulate important, foreign policy matters. Each school represented an individual country and the students' job was to present that nation's policy on several, political topics. Since our delegation was the second largest in the whole program, McNamara students represented Australia, Great Britian and Egypt.

The Big Apple was a super host for this worthwhile affair. With the city's glitter and cultural opportunities, participants learned a great deal and had fun doing so. Hopefully, trips will continue in the future, affording McNamara students the opportunity to further display their talents and vitality, which makes our school's involvement so significant.

Film ASA, shutter speed, f-stop, focus, exposure; polycontrast filters, enlarger, print: who said that all there is to taking a good picture is pointing a camera and shooting it? These technical matters become the working knowledge of Photography Club members as they develop into experienced photographers and darkroom workers. Through meetings, workshops, and slide presentations, the Photography Club tries to make students aware of the techniques and artistry of making good pictures, and the work of club members serves an important part of McNamara's newspaper and yearbook.

The McNamara Stang

With four entertaining and informative issues published, the 1983-84 school year was a very productive one for McNamara's newspaper, The Stang. As with any school organization, The Stang staff persisted in their respective duties with enthusiasm and skill while always maintaining the top priorities of journalism.

Under the competency of moderator, Mr. Al Odierno, and editor-in-chief, Dave Sacks, a diverse group of student journalists worked together to keep the school community abreast of all current news items. A special thanks also goes to feature editors Pat Parise, Brian Keizer and Jim Estes for their skillful contributions and faithful dedication.

The Stang can be proud of its achievements this year, for they certainly have maintained the tradition of fine McNamara journalism.

Putting It in Print

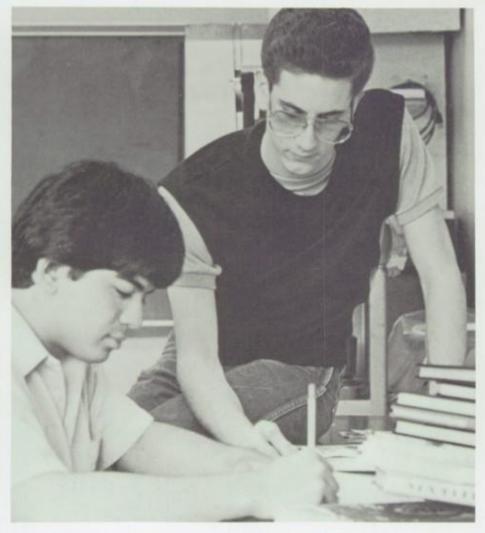

Where did I leave my glasses? ... Could you please pass the white out? ... God, do you think we're going to make this deadline?" In the midst of laughing, arguing, and sometimes, almost crying, these questions were often asked late at night in room 112 as the Yearbook Staff diligently worked to meet their deadlines. It is true. The publication of a yearbook is a major undertaking, but with a cooperative and competent staff, layouts, proofreading, typing, cropping, and everything else that goes into the preparation of a school yearbook, can be a little easier than it sounds. Under the guidance of Brother Paul Phillip and the editorial skills of Gary Mlinac and Rick Fiori, the 1984 Yearbook Staff worked well together, using originality and creativity as a goal for this year's publication.

The Yearbook Staff would especially like to acknowledge the talents and faithful support of the McNamara Photography Club, and in particular, its moderator, and former yearbook expert, Mr. Ted Schroll. Without their assistance, we would have "played our cards WRONG!"

Caught in the Act

As all good players know, "playing our cards right" means more than just getting yourself dealt those "lucky cards." "Playing your cards right" takes knowledge, skill, and a genuine love for the game itself.

The Bishop McNamara Drama Club this year truly impressed the McNamaraian Community when it played both its games, "Ten Little Indians" and "The Man Who Came to Dinner." All the players — cast, stage and production crews assembled for three nights each, in the fall and in the spring, to demonstrate professionally their knowledge, skill, and love for the theatre. And, like those viewers surrounding and watching a good poker game, the audiences for both productions were treated to some delightful playing.

Worth noting during both productions was the incredible amount of talent from the Class of '84. As a group, this year's seniors played out their hands on Mac's stage. Seasoned players, such as Rob Grisetti, Jim Ferguson and John Coffren, played harmoniously with newcomers, such as Jim Estepp, Jeff Tornell, Tom Kreis, Billy Fowlkes, Chris Cooksey, Vince Mammano, Pat Musselman, and, of course, Parrish Guido. Set and stage construction by Marc Meoli, lighting by Dave Straka, assistant director by Mark Carden, and all those dedicated members of stage and production crew combined to make a winning game. Add to these seniors, those seniors from La Reine — Salli McCray, Debbie Lantz, Sue Maney, Sonji Tolson, Jane MacCaffery, Kristl Reichwein and others - has prompted Mr. Beard, the director to note:

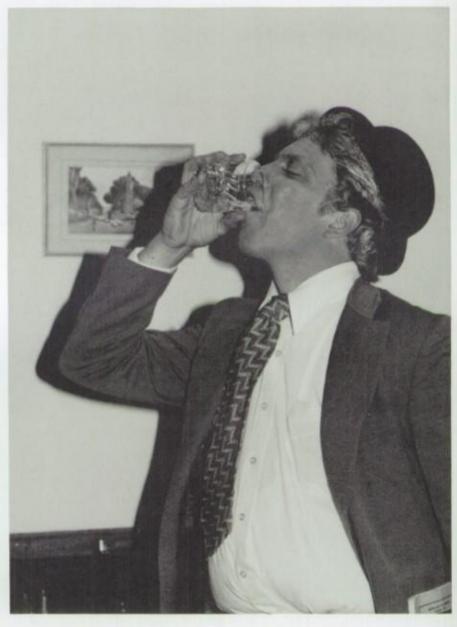

> "The Class of '84 from both Mac and La Reine has given to the Drama Club more than it will ever know. The seniors have unselfishly provided the necessary examples of leadership, effort, cooperation and love. Most importantly, however, the seniors have shown me that students can learn and have fun at the same time. I can't think of a better example that the seniors could have given to the Club. In a sense, the seniors have given the Club a finely-stacked deck to play its future games."

Speaking in Tongues

Who needs to enjoy Spanish or French, or even international rummy for that matter, to enjoy the diverse activities sponsored this year by McNamara's Language Clubs? With the help of many dedicated club members, Spanish Club Moderator, Mrs. JoAnn Wilson, and French Club Moderator, Mrs. Barbara Alushin, brought Spain and France a little closer to home for McNamara students.

The highlight for both clubs was the Annual International Christmas Luncheon. Beginning with a bilingual prayer of thanksgiving, which was followed by carolling in both Spanish and French, participating students were tantalized with delectable, foreign treats ranging from Mexican enchildas to French bouillabaisse. In the ambiance of a festive and elegantly decorated cafeteria, our McNamara Moms (God love 'em!) prepared and served a variety of international dishes that would make an American Thanksgiving dinner look like a peanut butter sandwich! The only "pots anted up" in this "game" were our very own bellies.

In addition to the Luncheon, the French Club also brought a little Christmas cheer next door to Mount Calvery by serenading the younger set with French carols. French Club members were also a familiar sight during intermissions at all concerts and drama productions with baked goods that would whet the appetite of any hungry theatre goer.

With this year's record attendance, the "Annual Talent Show" sponsored by the Spanish Club obviously is becoming a main event for both McNamara and Le Reine students. On April 27 a record crowd was awed by the complex, physical contortions of breakdancers, amazed at the sounds of several rock bands, and tickled by the repartee of Rodney Dangerfield (alias Dave Sacks). And last but not least, how can we forget the infamous commercial breaks featuring Vinnie Mammano in a skirt for the fourth year in a row? There certainly was no gonging on the Mac stage that night!

Yes, with the help of our Language Clubs, our students learn that studying a language is more than just memorizing verb conjugations and noun endings!

Bridging the Generation Gap

As their sons, we definitely cannot repay our parents for all they have done for us for if it were not for them, we would not be where we are today. Likewise, Bishop McNamara High School would not be where it is today if it were not for the parents who comprise our Women's Guild and Father's Club.

Mrs. Tina Grisetti, this year's Woman's Guild president, oversaw many successful endeavors. The Annual Christmas Bazaar, chaired by Mrs. Cissy Ayres and Mrs. Bea Kruckow, featured not only a variety of handmade Christmas decorations, but also a delicious brunch that would certainly give the Hilton a run for its money! Under the supervision of Mrs. Alicia Parise, a delightful new idea turned into a delightful evening at the Women's Guild "Dinner Theatre". After relishing a New Orleans, Mardi Gras dinner, many sat back and enjoyed the song and dance of "Deaf Dimensions," a local theatre group. Spring is becoming almost synonymous with the word "Fashion Show," and this year was no different than any other. As several fashion setters watched, professional models and our very own McNamara Moms and students modeled the latest in spring and summer wear. A special thanks goes to Mrs. Gretchen Muir for making this possible, as well as to ever faithful Brother Eli for his untiring and faithful devotion for this fine organization.

Likewise, our Dads were also busy in their own way. What's a football or basketball game like without a hot dog? Luckily, thanks to the Father's Club, no one had to find out, for our McNamara Dads always had enough red hots to satisfy the hunger pains. Also, for one spring night, our cafeteria tables were transformed into poker, blackjack and crap tables as the Father's Club sponsored the annual "Las Vegas Night." Under the supervision of Chairmen Bernard Bedon and Buzz Gillogly, anyone could bet on a lucky horse, take a chance on a raffle, or simply grab a sandwich to fill something as the wallets and pocket-books quickly emptied.

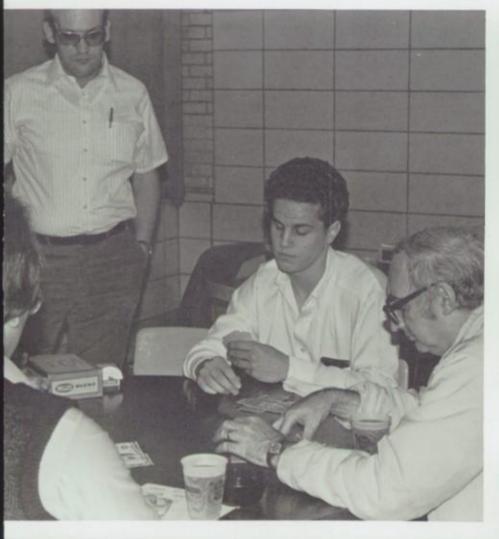

We at McNamara truly are indebted to all of our parents, not only for their time and contributions given to our school, but more importantly, for their personal love and support of us. We know we don't say it much, but we want you to know how much we appreciate you. Thanks Mom and Dad! Oh, by the way, can I use the car tonight?

Intermezzo

Inder the direction of Music Man, Mr. Dave Mullen, during the past three years, the McNamara Music Department has expanded to include several, separate, musical groups which offer various genres of musical composition and style. In addition to "fine tuning" the Concert and Symphonic Bands and Jazz-Rock Ensemble, the Department gave birth this year to its newest member, The Brass Quartet, which added a sense of majesty to many occasions. Excluding their three annual concerts, McNamara's Music Department graciously serenaded many receptive audiences with everything from pop to classical during several school assemblies and Liturgies. With such fine talent, we look forward to an encore performance of this year's successes. A special "bravo" for both maestro and musicians!

Painting with Words

The 1983-84 Zephyr staff produced McNamara's second, annual literary magazine. Like last year, it offered the opportunity for students to display their talents in the fields of creative writing and art. Thus, short stories, poems, essays, and of course, drawings, all were present to highlight the fruitful imaginations of McNamara's students, which is the very reason why the Zephyr was first instituted. Under the capable moderatorship of Mrs. Van Rossum, McNamara's budding Picassos, Hemingways and Frosts combined their efforts to present the McNamara literary audience with a first class publica-

Globetrotters

If this is Tuesday, it must be England, or France, or is it Spain? This was the question several students were asking in late March as they toured London, Paris and Madrid. From the Tower of London, to the Eiffel Tower, to the El Grecos of Toledo, good times and good food were shared by all. Under the guidance of Br. Walter, this year's "Globetrotters" included Rick Crocker, Greg Cox, Chan Spriggs, Tom Warren, Rich Beall, Bruce Hinson and Quentin Redmond.

Break a Leg!

The Bishop McNamara Ski Club, co-moderated by Mr. St. Pierre and Mr. Nelson, enjoyed a number of successful outings this year. In December the club sponsored its annual trip to Hunter Mountain in New York's Catskills, and during our March break, a group journeyed to the famous Killington Resort in Vermont. In between these two major events, the club kept its members in shape by arranging several excursions into Pennsylvania and to the Liberty ski area, taking advantage of the resort's close proximity to do some middle-of-the-week night skiing. The club's expanded activities for this year allowed more chances for a number of newcomers to get acquainted with the sport, as well as providing the more experienced skiers many challenges on various terrains.

ATHLETICS

SUITING UP

Kicking The Habit

After blazing by a Dematha defender, Tom Kreis fires the ball downfield.

In the past, soccer did not receive much credit here at McNamara, but this year was an exception. Not only did our Varsity Soccer Team win the Riverdale Baptist Tournament, but Andy McCrossan and Lewis Richards were awarded the defensive M.V.P. and offensive M.V.P., respectively, and Pete Cevenini and Steve Parks were both selected to the all tournament team. The team concluded their season with a 7-9 record.

Unfortunately, the "cards were not dealt in favor" of our J.V. Soccer Team, for they lost eight games by only one goal. Although this year proved to be a learning experience for the players, hopefully, next year's team will prove to be more vibrant and strong.

Lewis Richards stylishly steals the ball from an opponent.

For the past three seasons, Andrew McCrossan has defended McNamara's goal.

Easy does it!

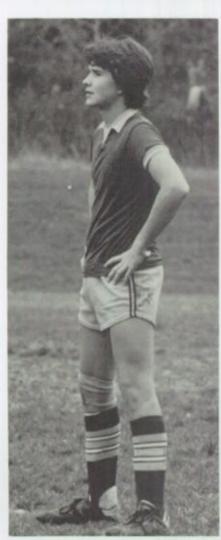

Stripping the ball from an opponent, Todd Mattingly is able to ignite a McNamara drive.

On Your Mark

The 1983 Cross Country Team completed a successful season with an impressive 6-4 record. The team got off to a fast start winning their first three meets. Keith Sewell and Greg Boehmer finished first and second respectively in all three of the meets. Although the team will be losing Senior Keith Sewell, McNamara's top finisher, next year's team is likely to carry on the winning tradition.

A Hot Start with a Cool Ending

Calling the signals, Quarterback Marco Clark is well protected behind an offensive line which averaged 235 lbs. per lineman.

The Varsity Football Team finished with a satisfactory 6-4 record. The team, the largest ever with twelve players weighing over 200 lbs., crushed its first three opponents, ranking it in The Post's Top 20. However, thoughts of a second championship soon "cooled" when the team lost four games by less than eight points. The defensive unit still proved to be the best in the Conference, giving up only 7.2 points a game allowing only 72 points all season.

On the other hand, the J.V. and Freshman Football Teams proved to be the "cool ones" by each winning the first place Metro title. The J.V. team, was 6-0 in the Conference, eliminating a repeat of last year's tie with Good Councel. With equal capability and determination, the Freshmen triumphed as well. A special congratulations goes to Coach Turner who has captured four WMAC Freshman Football Championships in the last five seasons!

"3 - 2 - 1! Pin!" (Tim Tharp)

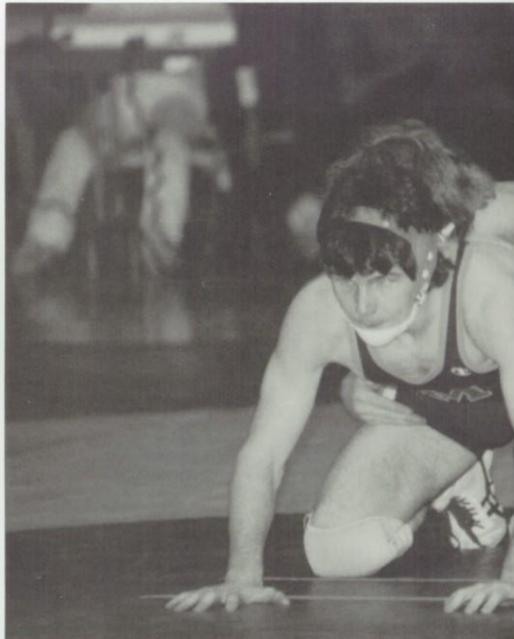

Flipping his opponent to victory, Mark Kirby takes the lead.

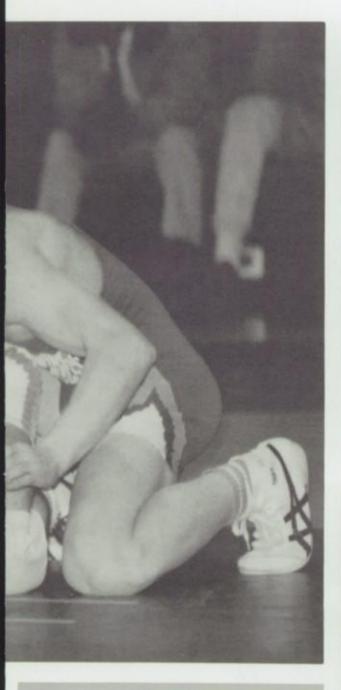

In 1976, McNamara High won the Metro Conference Wrestling Title. Seven years later, and after one frustrating season after another, the 1983-84 Wrestling Team put their past failures behind, and this year captured again the Metro Conference Championship. Leading the Mustangs through an undefeated Metro Conference season, 6-0, 12-6 overall, were 119 pounder Mike Purdy (15-3 this season), Tim Tharp (167), Chris Reinhardt (185) and Joe Hall (unlimited). The high point of the season came with back to back, stunning victories over O'Connell (32-31) and DeMatha (38-32). McNamara's victory over O'Connell, last year's Metro Champion, was the first ever in the team's history. McNamara's third year coach, Geary Fitzpatrick, said, "There were some close calls, but we won them all!"

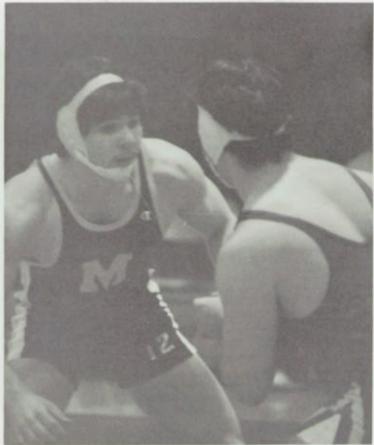

The strength of this year's team was also its fantastic crop of young players, who contributed in taking off the pressure of the more experienced Varsity lineup. In addition, there were a number of individual achievements as well. Mike Purdy took his second WMAC Championship, while Chris Reinhardt, Mark Kirby and Tim Tharp all took second. As for next year, sophomore Joe Hall appears to be a promising prospect for the future, after finishing first in the Conference, winning St. Alban's and taking second at the Nationals. Congratulations and good luck to all!

Riding to second place in the National Prep Tournament, Joe Hall locks his man helpless.

Court's in Session

With the players quick "shuffling" on court, the Varsity Basketball Team completed their season with a respectable record and a promising future. As proof of this, the team finished first and second in both tournaments in which they participated. With a 14-16 record, Coach Marty Waters remained positive—observing that "next year will be a good year because of the talented J.V. players moving up." Unfortunately, McNamara says good-bye to Seniors Mike Bozeman, Robbie Brown, Bryan Hendricks, Derrick Bullie, Darryl Sommerville and Jeff McKenzie. Although they will be missed, the verdict for next year is a promising one.

A special congratulations goes to the J.V. team who finished second in the league with a 18-5 record. Attributing much of the season's success to the fine coaching, Coach Jay Sommerville also complimented top scorers Chris Maruca and Ray Johnson for their fancy footwork. Next year's team will have to work even harder to improve upon this season.

Despite being "dealt some bad hands" in their conference play, this year's freshman team also had a winning record. Even though they were small in size, they made up for it with speed and quickness.

Putting on the pressure, D. Sommerville plays tough man-to-man defense.

Running Like Hell!

Spring is a great time at McNamara, for it's when a young man's fancy turns to running. So often we would see our faithful runners out back training diligently for several, upcoming meets. Under the direction of Coach Rick Wallace, a typical workout would usually last longer than your average athletic practice, and the hard work certainly paid off. The team boasted several, top runners this year. Congratulations goes to veteran Keith Sewell, who placed first in the Springarn Invitational, and talented freshman, Antonio Lucas, who captured several medals for McNamara. Certainly, exceptional talent was demonstrated by all, and we look forward to those same winning ways next year.

Getting into the Swing of Things here is more to the sport of golf than I men with silver poles attempting to place a ball into the hole the size of a cup. For back seat coaches, it's easy to remark: "Heck! Anybody can hit that ball into a hole!" How wrong they are! For high school golfers, such as McNamara's 1984 Team, the harsh reality of this lesson was unfortunately learned. Although the team's trademark this year was hard work and more hard work, the scores just did not add up in their favor. Special recognition though is given to Coach Terry Eisenhute for his excellent coaching skills, as well as to senior, Joe Ziccardi, whoe fine swinging and putting complimented the team. Although this year's team was not necessarily up to par, watch out for next year's, for most members will be returning with new enthusiasm and improvement.

Now this will be a challenge. (C. Robb)

Touching Base

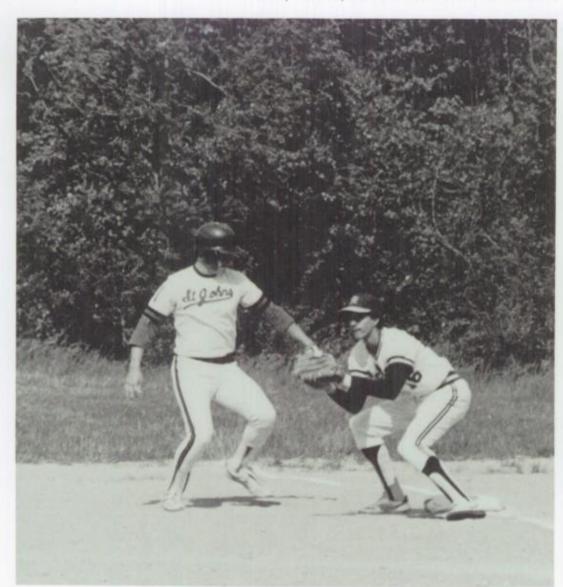

This one's for Mom! (Danny Raab)

Baseball maybe as American as Mom, apple pie and Chevrolet, but this year it was more foreign to McNamara than it was American. With a lack of experience and a plague of injuries, the McNamara Mustangs, unfortunately, did not match the high standards of previous years. Although Coach Tom Buckler admits that this year's team had great potential, due to inconsistent playing and a propensity for errors, this potential was never firmly established. Even with the returning efforts of seniors Robbie Brown, Tony Basiliko, Mike Roberts, Danny Raab, Steve Piazza, Ron Taylor and Brian Rumsey, the Stangs still had a long way to go before they could beat last year's Metro Conference hopefuls.

But, optimistically speaking, with the J.V.'s good hitting and new talent, this year's inexperience can easily turn into experience that can only assist the Mustangs in bringing back their excellent pitching, backup, and overall good teamwork next year!

With eyes revited on the mound, Carlton Cruz awaits the next pitch.

A Perfect Match

The 1984 Tennis Team certainly has come a long way in the past year. The entire team provided tough competition for their Metro opponents, who previously shrugged off McNamara's team as being masqueraders in white shorts. When Coach Marty Waters unleashed his secret weapon, Robert Draggonette, a junior and member of the team since his freshman year, our Metro adversaries were stunned. "What happened to last year's team that had a record of 2-12?" asked members of the opposing teams. After eight games into the season, the team doubled its win column of a year ago. Yes, this team has improved greatly from last year, but wait until next year when practically all members are returning.

For a Catholic high school to maintain a fine, academic quality and vibrant, Christian witness, it must maintain a competent and cooperative administration, faculty and staff who are committed both to academic excellence and Christian principles. Here, at McNamara, we are fortunate to be blessed with a "full house" of dedicated individuals who strive to build a community of intellects and faith believers. This is manifested in their enthusiastic support of student activities, quality class preparations, and general overall concern for the student population. To these "Kings and Queens," we give our respect and gratitude.

Receiving the Medal of Honor cademics has always been the priority at AMcNamara; therefore, once a year, the school formally commemorates those students who have demonstrated scholastic superiority and excellence at the Annual Honors and Awards Night. Moderated by Mr. Robert St. Pierre and graced with the musical performance of the McNamara Concert Band, this evening traditionally has been a special occasion for students, faculty and parents as McNamara parades its best and recognizes its achievers. In addition to the special awards given for individual achievements and each subject area, Bishop McNamara proudly inducted a new membership into its National Honor Society. We have much to be thankful for at McNamara and every year our Honors Night reminds us of that.

Accepting his dedication, Mr. Broschart shakes the hand of Gary Mlinac.

A special thank you on behalf of the band to Mr. Dave Mullen.

Kind words were said by a visiting naval officer on behalf of Wendell Harris, an ROTC scholarship recipient.

The induction ceremony for the N.H.S. begins with the lighting of the candles.

"Golly, gee. Thanks a lot." (D. White)

Our future West Point cadet, T. Strickland. Reciting of the N.H.S. oath.

"Gee, I wish I could dance like them!"

All Night Long

B lack tails and pastel-colored ties won this year as the most popular tuxedo combination at the McNamara Junior-Senior Prom held at the Ramada Hotel in Old Town Alexandria. Tee shirts and cut-offs may be comfortable, but without a cummerbund, it certainly would have been out of place, as our McNamara guys came with their gals in formal wear that would make Charles and Diana green with envy. The clothes though were only half the fun! While enjoying both a spectacular view of the Potomac River and a tantalizing buffet of hors d'oeuvres, one of the largest crowds ever at a McNamara Prom let their "feet loose" to the music and song of "Fancy Colours". Although many continued their postprom festivities at several parties and breakfasts, when the clock struck one, all were wishing that if only the dancing and fun would last, like the theme suggested, "All Night Long".

"I can't believe that I left the Certs in the car."

"Princess Di eat your heart out!"

"I don't suppose you could check the men's room for my date."

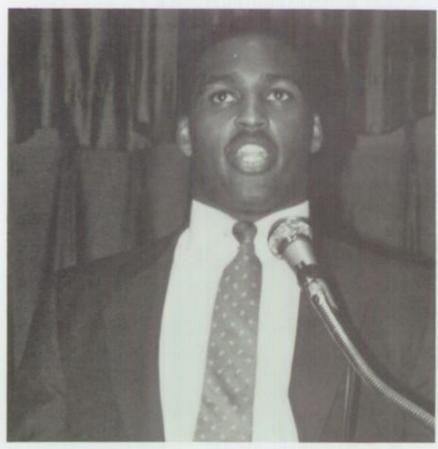

"Sorry, Mac, but there's no Dan Raab on this list."

Going for the Gold!

On the night of May 17, all football pads, basketball jerseys and wrestling headgear were left home by our McNamara athletes, as they donned their three-piece suits to attend the annual Bishop McNamara Athletic Awards Banquet, held at the Knights of Columbus in Forestville. Trophies, letters and pins were awarded by Coach Frank Neitzey to McNamara's players commemorating their skills, dedication and growth in the many individual sports our school offers. A special award was given to retiring Freshman Football Coach, Andy Turner, in appreciation for his several years of successful coaching both on and off the field, of our Freshman Mustangs. His kind, gentle, but firm leadership will definitely be missed by the entire McNamara Community.

The Wrestling Team proudly accepts their awards.

The speaker for the evening was Mike Faulkner, a member of the Class of 1975 and presently an academic counselor for athletes at U.V. Tech.

Athletic Director Frank Neitzey reflects on McNamara's year in sports.

Congratulations to Chris Reinhardt from Coach Andy Turner.

"Do This in Memory of Me."

The graduates bring before the Lord their needs in prayer.

We at McNamara often gather together at Liturgy to give thanks to God. But, the Sunday before graduation was a special gathering, for the Class of 1984 came together for the last time in prayer to give thanks for one another, their teachers, parents and past years at McNamara. Father Larry Jerge poignently wove in his homily our McNamara experience with our future and reminded us of the Gospel values we have acquired. Afterwards, our Communion meditation was enhanced with slides and music as it sought to capture the familiar faces and ordinary, daily rituals at McNamara that we probably will miss more than we are willing to admit. In the Gospel for that day, Christ said, "The man who has faith in me will do the works I do, and greater far than these." As we look forward to our own "works" and hopes of the future, we pray that they always will be rooted in our faith and commitment to Jesus Christ.

The processional begins to the music of "Sing to the Mountains".

A reading from the First Letter of Peter by Tim Connolly.

Our guest celebrant, Father Bernard Martin, accepts the gifts of bread and wine from S. Piazza, A. Basiliko, J. Ziccardi and D. Raab.

Full Speed Ahead!

This year's senior class introduced two new events to the host of senior activities already at McNamara. The day before graduation, the seniors were treated to a special, continental breakfast, followed by the presentation of various "Mock Awards" and the annual graduation rehearsal. In the evening, several graduates and their dates boarded "The Ambassador" in Washington's Harbor for a three hour cruise down the Potomac for moonlight dancing, last minute reminiscing, and for some, quiet reflection. It was an excellent opportunity for both faculty and graduates to mingle, laugh, and simply enjoy one another's company before the final good-byes at commencement the following evening.

Who me? Why I've been down here all night. I Swear it! (Jon

One step closer to the final moments of graduation, Prashant Bagalkotkar receives one of the special senior awards.

In the awesome and cavernous main church of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, and in the echoes of the familiar strains of the traditional "Pomp and Circumstance," 172 McNamara seniors proudly marched their way down the aisle to become the McNamara Alumni of the Class of 1984. After a moving reflection on individual gifts and friendship by senior class speaker, Tom Buckley, Rev. William Byron, S.J., President of the Catholic University, eloquently addressed the graduates and audience on the needs of higher education and their implications for young people in the future. Senior awards were then presented, followed by the awarding of diplomas by our principal, Brother Walter Kramar. In the midst of popping flashcubes and random, spontaneous cheers, the Graduates of 1984 accepted their well-earned diplomas, and warmly, but a little sadly, bid one another farewell, leaving with each other their memories and fondness.
